1. Introduction

1.1 Background/ Foreword

NHSE has set out the following as the four core purposes of ICSs:

a) improve outcomes in population health and healthcare
b) tackle inequalities in outcomes, experience and access
c) enhance productivity and value for money
d) help the NHS support broader social and economic development.

The ICB will use its resources and powers to achieve demonstrable progress on these aims, collaborating to tackle complex challenges, including:

- improving the health of children and young people
- supporting people to stay well and independent
- acting sooner to help those with preventable conditions
- supporting those with long-term conditions or mental health issues
- caring for those with multiple needs as populations age
- getting the best from collective resources so people get care as quickly as possible.

The South East London Integrated Care System is a partnership bringing together health and care organisations across the NHS, local authorities and the voluntary and independent sectors to best serve our population of almost two million residents in diverse communities. Our ambition is to deliver significant improvements in health and wellbeing in south east London, in particular through preventing ill health, delivering whole person care close to people's homes, joining up care across health and other public services, and tackling inequalities in access to care, experience and outcomes across our communities. We also want to make a major contribution to people's lives by supporting environmental sustainability and the economic and social resilience of our communities.

We are convinced that the best way of delivering these objectives is through partnership working and empowering people throughout our system to deliver change. This Constitution provides the foundation for a collective model of leadership and governance, bringing together leaders from across our system to decide how we use our resources, how we plan services, and how we oversee performance. It also provides a foundation for groups of staff within our system to take greater responsibility for how they manage local services, without needing to seek approval from others.

As part of these new arrangements, we will bring together senior leaders from across our system as part of an 'Integrated Care Partnership' to help set direction and oversee the system. The partnership will comprise leaders from public healthcare organisations, our local authorities, the voluntary, community and social enterprise sector and local Healthwatch branches who champion the interests of patients and the public in south east London. It will have responsibility for developing an ‘integrated care strategy’ setting direction for health and care services in south east London. As well as setting this strategy, we envisage the partnership playing a key role in holding the leadership of south east London, including health and care organisations, collectively to account for delivering the strategy. We also envisage the partnership playing a key role in facilitating joint action across public services to improve health and care, address inequalities, influence the wider determinants of health and support social and economic development.

As well as the partnership, we will establish the unitary board needed for the statutory Integrated Care Board by bringing together senior leaders from health and care organisations. This will have formal responsibility for allocating resources for health and care within south east London and the planning and oversight of services. The board will be responsible for developing a plan to meet the needs of our population, targeting resources to deliver the plan, and contracting for delivery of services. It will also have key responsibilities for delivering our priorities for supporting our workforce, leading action to develop our digital and data capabilities and infrastructure and supporting the development of our estate amongst other priorities.

Whilst the board will play a central role in planning for our system, we believe in the importance of subsidiarity and will, wherever possible delegate responsibilities for organising services to partnerships within our system subject to appropriate governance and leadership arrangements being in place. In particular, it will delegate the budgets and responsibilities for out of hospital care to six local care partnerships in each borough, bringing together local health and care leaders, the voluntary, community and social enterprise sector and representatives of patients and the public for each of our boroughs. These local care partnerships will work collectively to design and deliver more effective local services, harnessing the strengths of different local organisations and restructuring services to better meet people’s needs.

The Board also plans to delegate budgets and responsibilities for some more services to provider collaboratives, groups of healthcare organisations within our system, where there are benefits in these organisations working together to better use their resources or to improve how care is delivered. All of these new partnerships, and individual organisations within our system, will have collective responsibility for improving services as well as meeting the statutory expectations which go with this delegation.

We are ambitious and committed to our aim of demonstrably improving the health and care of our residents. We believe that success will depend on harnessing the knowledge and commitment of clinical and care professionals as well as other leaders throughout our system, so that staff can bring all their creativity and energy to improving care. We are investing to ensure that clinical and care professional leaders in our system can spend time away from direct patient care supporting the types of improvement to services that will deliver lasting benefit for our communities. We are also investing to give staff the leadership skills and knowledge of quality improvement, innovation and joint working with the public needed to deliver these roles.

Finally, we believe that success will depend on the strength of the partnership between health and care services in south east London and our communities. We want to involve our communities as actively as possible in our system, from the strategic oversight of the system to the design of services and to harness the power of our communities in supporting health and wellbeing. As part of these new arrangements, we are strengthening the role of citizens in the oversight of our system and creating the basis for citizens to work alongside clinical and care professionals in the planning and oversight of services, so we harness the insights of service users as a driver for innovation and improvement.

c) Be proactive, not reactive: Everyone within the scope of this policy should seek to identify and minimise the risk of conflicts of interest at the earliest possible opportunity

d) Be balanced, sensible and proportionate: Rules should be clear and robust but not overly prescriptive or restrictive. They should ensure that decision-making is transparent and fair whilst not being overly constraining, complex or cumbersome
